Tuesday, 15 October 1974

0830 - 0900 Registration

0900 - 0915 Welcome

Alfonso Rodriguez
Director of Training

0915 - 1000 CIA Today

████████████████████
Senior Briefing
Officer, Office
of Training

25X1A

To set the scene and provide a backdrop for later presentations, the speaker will review briefly the current structure, organization and mission of the Agency, emphasizing recent changes which have taken place.

25X1A

1030 - 1130

International Drug
Traffic - The Intelligence Role

████████████████████
Chief, Narcotics
Coordination Group

In recent years the U.S. Government and the Agency have become increasingly involved in efforts to stem the flow of illicit narcotics into our country. The President has given this effort a top priority, and has specifically directed the Agency to participate. Our speaker will discuss the government's efforts in this field, and, more specifically, the Agency's present and future role in this new, but significant area of our operations.

1140 - 1230

CIA and the Congress

George L. Cary
Legislative Counsel

What is the current status of our congressional relations? What are our responsibilities to the special committees set up to oversee the Agency? Does the Congress view the Agency in a different light than in the past? What are the relationships and problems likely to be in the future? The Legislative Counsel will discuss these questions and others pertinent to this sensitive and important topic.

1230 - 1330 Lunch
1330 - 1400 Film: "Energy:
 Critical Choices Ahead"

The scope and impact of the current energy crisis is described in this new film produced by the Department of Commerce.

1400 - 1500	The Intelligence Directorate - Current Issues and Future Trends	Paul V. Walsh Acting Deputy Director for Intelligence
-------------	---	--

The primary responsibility for producing finished intelligence and providing policy support for the President and the NSC lies in the Intelligence Directorate. Our speaker will discuss the major activities of this Directorate, special problem areas of current interest, the significance of recent organizational changes, and relationships with other parts of the Agency and the Intelligence Community.

1530 - 1620	Economic Policy Support	 Acting Deputy Director of Economic Research

25X1A

The changing position of the US in the world economy has sharply increased the demand for intelligence support for US economic policymakers. Our speaker, the Acting Deputy Director of Economic Research, will briefly outline how the policymakers' interest in economic intelligence has developed, and will use the current oil crisis as a case study.

Wednesday, 16 October 1974

0900 - 1030

The Soviet Union -
An Intelligence
Overview

NIO for Soviet Union and Eastern Europe

25X1A

The Soviet Union, because of its dominant world position, its political and military strength, continues to be the Agency's primary intelligence target. Our speaker, who has recently returned from a visit to the U.S.S.R., will provide us with an overview of the strength and weakness of that nation, will discuss its foreign policy objectives, its attitudes toward the U.S.A., and its long and short range views on detente.

1100 - 1200

Science and Technology in Intelligence

Carl E. Duckett
Deputy Director
for Science and Technology

The speaker will describe the current activities of his Directorate, including recent organizational changes and new responsibilities. He will also discuss the contribution Science and Technology has made to intelligence, and take a look into the future at technological developments which may be of interest to the Agency.

1200 - 1300

Lunch

1300 - 1400

Film: "The Palestinians"

A CBS Documentary tracing the history of peoples who constitute a critical factor in resolving Middle East tensions.

1400 - 1450

The Agency and
Equal Employment
Opportunity

Thomas W. Holmes
Director of
Equal Employment
Opportunity Programs

The Federal Government is firmly committed to achieving equal employment opportunity (EEO) for all employees regardless of race, color, religion, sex, or national origin. The DCI has fully endorsed this program and has made it one of the Agency's major management objectives. The speaker will highlight the status of EEO in the Agency, the progress we must make to attain an acceptable position in the Federal Government, and the problems we face in doing so. The role all Agency employees play in this program will be emphasized.

1520 - 1620

Personnel Management -
The Outlook for the Seventies

Frederick W.M. Janney
Director of Personnel

Our speaker will describe and clarify the underlying philosophy of the new approaches to personnel management enunciated by the Director within the last year. He will describe those matters of personnel management in which the Office of Personnel has a key role, as well as those for which line managers have primary responsibility.

0900 - 1000	Administrative Support in CIA - Present Activities and Future Plans	John F. Blake Deputy Director for Administration
-------------	--	---

The administrative arm of the Agency has a new name and a new Deputy Director. Mr. Blake will discuss administrative support from both the Headquarters and field points of view, and will describe innovations and changes which have taken place in the various DDA offices. He will also take a look at the future, and will evaluate the Agency's ability to provide continuing and adequate support, in view of changing priorities, inflationary pressures, and a general tightening of Agency and Intelligence Community resources.

1030 - 1130	The Operations Directorate - Current Activities and Future Plans	William E. Nelson Deputy Director for Operations

Comments by Mr. Blake
CIA Today and Tomorrow
17 October 1974

Mr. Blake began by complimenting the Office of Training for designing and administering the CIA Today and Tomorrow course. He said a course like this is a "tribute to the Agency."

Other interesting points which Mr. Blake made:

- A. Discussed the reasons behind the name change from DDM&S to DDA. Also reasons behind returning the Comptroller function to the DCI complex.
- B. Expressed belief that elimination of the Executive Director-Comptroller has thrown an extra burden on the DCI.
- C. He endorsed the MBO principle, feeling that it has improved communications among the top managers of the Agency.
- D. He then described present developments and future trends in the various DDA offices. In discussing OTR he mentioned only two programs--the Information Science courses, and the management training programs, mentioning that he had "high hopes" for the OTR Advanced Management Program.

Comments by Mr. Duckett
at the CIA Today and Tomorrow Course
16 October 1974

Mr. Duckett reviewed the origins of his Directorate and the rationale for its establishment. He then discussed the formation of the Office of Weapons Intelligence and the reasons for the transfer of OTS and NPIC to the DDS&T. He briefly talked about each of the offices in his Directorate and their major current activities. He noted the centralization of the research and development efforts of the Agency and the creation of the government-wide R&D Board which has already cut down on some duplication.

No. 24-74

12 August 1974

To: All Training Officers of the Agency

CIA TODAY AND TOMORROW

Due to an unexpected commitment, the Headquarters Auditorium will not be available from 17 - 19 September for the CIA Today and Tomorrow. The course is therefore postponed until 15 - 17 October (18 October for DDO only).

All Agency personnel registered for the September course, will be transferred to the October running automatically, unless they wish to have their registrations withdrawn. Component training officers are urged to notify all interested personnel of this change as soon as possible.

No directorate quota system has been established for this running. Although designed mainly for professional personnel, others may attend if nominated by their supervisors. Additional nominations should be received by the Office of Training no later than 1 October.

The major objective of this course is to update the attendee on current activities and future trends in the Agency. Senior Agency officials will participate as guest speakers.
